New Jersey voters to decide on Library Construction Bond

On November 7th, voters will cast their vote to determine whether New Jersey libraries will receive 125 million dollars to fund capital projects to improve and modernize libraries.

During the recent economic downturn, many libraries were unable to move forward with capital improvements and are in critical need to upgrade facilities now. A survey conducted by the New Jersey Library Association found that library buildings are not fully ADA compliant (41.32%), in need of additional square footage (47.93%); in need of interior painting or new flooring (77.59%) and need of electrical upgrades (47.41%).

The bond money will be matched a 1:1 of state and local dollars providing a potential of $250 million in economic development throughout NJ by providing jobs for the building trades, engineering firms and architects.

The bond could provide funding for local improvements at our Catherine Dickson Hofman Branch which is in need of repairs to its HVAC system and roof.
